

Berlin's Best Burger: Bacon Edition

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 5, 2016 by Sonja Ferdman

Yet again you guys have proved to be the best of fans. Not the mist, the cold, not even the dreary gray clouds kept you from us at Burgers & Hiphop at Prince Charles this Saturday. At least the smell of bacon cut through iffy weather, am I right? The salt, the maple, the ever so slightly charred aroma kept even the lightest of eaters coming back for seconds (or thirds). Big thanks to our incredible vendors this round. They all toughened it out and came up with patties layered with condiments to i-m-p-r-e-s-s: machego crisps, wurst, homemade bbq, sautéed vegetables (separate burgers). Not surprisingly, competition this year was tough and well fought out. The night closed with a well fed crowd dancing to the tunes of Beyoncé and Biggie Smalls: the mist, it turns out, is great for cooling off.

Gorilla Barbecue

Turns out slow and steady wins the day. Gorilla Barbecue who notoriously smoke their meat for over 14 hours came and won the hearts of Saturday's audience with a whopping 294 votes! Maybe it was the sweet bun, the tangy cucumber, the cool creamy truffle mayo? Maybe it was the Irish beef? Let's see if they can keep their throne next round. Congratulations!
